THREATENS TO BURN BARNS

Suspicious Character Wandering Around in the Vicinity of Barlow Causes Great Alarm Among Farmers.

On Monday evening a fairly well dressed man of medium stature called at the farm house of Mr. Dehoof living near Barlow, and asked for something to eat. Mrs. Dehoof who was very busily engaged with her chores at the time told him, that she could not be bothered by preparing him a luncheon. The man grew very angry at the refusal and began to swear at Mrs. Dehoof in a very abusive manner, saying that the house and barn would be in ashes before morning.

He then went from Mr. Dehoof's house over to Mr. Slagle's who is living on the adjoining farm belonging to Mr. Dehoof, and repeated his demands. Mrs. Slagle prepared him some bread and butter, he refused the rations offered him by the hospitable Mrs. Slagle and started in with the same abusive language and threatened to devastate the property by fire.

The alarm was immediately taken up by the neighboring farmers, and a posse set out to capture the man, he was headed in the direction of Harney but evidently deviated from his path to baffle his pursuers, which he succeeded in doing. The posse lost track of him about one mile below Mt. Joy church, and the "Barn Burner" is still at large. Sheriff Fissel was notified of the treacherous intentions of this malicious visitor to the county and an effort will be made to run him down.

The plans of the thief were rather systematic, the hook on the broom stick being used to pull the chickens from the roost, by operating through the small entrance hole. Only one chicken was stolen. Mr. Duttera evidently arrived just in the beginning of the thief's operations.

FIERCE FIGHTING NEAR BOSTON

General Bliss Has Made Material Advance of His Forces.

HONORS ABOUT EVENLY DIVIDED

Unless General Pew Can Concentrate His Blue Forces to Meet the Attack of the Heavily Massed Reds, He Faces Defeat—Invaders Using Wireless Telegraphy.

Boston, Aug. 18.—At the conclusion of Tuesday's manoeuvres in the war game in which the army of the Red, under Brigadier General Tasker H. Bliss, is striving to defeat the army of the Blue, commanded by Brigadier General William A. Pew, Jr., and capture Boston, the army of the Red had made a material advance, and unless General Pew, of the defenders, can concentrate his forces to meet the attack of troops which General Bliss has massed heavily on the Blues' left, General Pew faces defeat.

The two headquarters this morning were less than a dozen miles apart. General Pew's headquarters are still at Robins pond, within six miles of Bridgewater, while General Bliss has made a material advance from a point eight miles southeast of Middleboro.

From the general direction of the movements of General Bliss and his army and the strength of his command the plan which he intends to follow is being watched with interest.

COPYRIGHT BY PACH BROS. N.Y. GENERAL LEONARD WOOD.

Empire of Land Operation in Mimic War Game.

low to capture Boston is apparently revealed for the first time. This is to annihilate General Pew's extreme left, and to pass that end with a comparatively clear road to Boston. General Bliss in his advance placed all his cavalry, consisting of five troops, on his left flank, and they easily dislodged all the Blue Infantry on General Pew's extreme left as the advance was made.

General Bliss moved his two brigades massed, the first under command of Brigadier General George H. Harries and the second under Colonel Daniel Appleton, together with the twenty-second regiment of engineers and all his field artillery. He arrived at Eddysville, where the road forks to the east and north. The first brigade took the eastern road, which would have carried them around Pew's left end, while the second brigade took the northern road, heading directly for Boston.

The second brigade of the Red army had proceeded less than a mile along the northern road when it received a genuine surprise. Companies G, H, M and D, of the Eighth Infantry, under Major W. H. Perry, occupied a magnificent hilltop position, supported by battery B, of Worcester. The entire Blue force was well concealed, with the battery so posted that it could sweep the highway with a plunging cross fire. Into this trap the Red army marched. The Red front had advanced well into the trap when infantry and battery opened a murderous cross fire. At such a range in actual warfare the front of the Red brigade would have melted like snow before an April rain. The Red brigade fell back while General Bliss endeavored to get his artillery located. Before he could do this hostilities were suspended for the day.

Outside the precarious position of the left wing of the defending army, the feature of the day was the repulse of the enemy in its rear attack on Boston. Two companies of the Red army, numbering about 200 men, were landed early in the morning by the transport Summer near the Ocean house, Swampscott, and after a bloody encounter were driven off.

Wireless telegraphy figured in the day's movements. The signal corps of the national guard at Washington brought the wireless telegraph outfit to the front of General Bliss' Red line, and kept headquarters well posted on the proceedings at the front.

Straus Sails For New Post. Washington, Aug. 18.—Oscar S. Straus, the American ambassador to Turkey, has informed the state department that he will sail from New York for his new post on the North German Lloyd steamship Prinz Friedrich, and expects to reach Constantinople about Sept. 10.

X-RAY AS LEPROSY CURE

U. S. Quarantine Officer in Philippines Makes Important Demonstration. Washington, Aug. 18.—The X-ray as a cure for some cases of leprosy has been demonstrated by the American health authorities in the Philippines, according to Dr. Victor G. Heiser, chief quarantine officer in the islands. Dr. Heiser in a report to Surgeon General Wyman, of the public health and marine hospital service, says the X-ray is suitable only for specially selected cases, and is valuable apparently only in the early stages. San Lazaro hospital, at Manila, was the first institution in the world to use the X-ray for leprosy treatment. Official figures show that on March 31, 1909, there were 2446 lepers in the Philippines, segregation having reduced by more than 1000 the number of cases during the past two years. At the beginning of the American occupation, eleven years ago, there were nearly 4000 lepers. Americans perfected the establishment for lepers in the island of Cullion in 1906. It is estimated that under the Spanish regime 700 new cases appeared every year. At the present time the new cases average 300 annually.

BUSINESS DISTRICT OF GLASGOW BURNED

Five Hundred People Homeless. Fire Loss, $1,250,000.

Glasgow, Scotland, Aug. 18.—Fire destroyed a big portion of the industrial centre, doing considerable damage to the mercantile district and entailing a loss of $1,250,000.

The fire was one of the worst which has visited the city in many decades, and the firemen were powerless for a long time in the sweep of the devastating rush of flames. The central fire station was threatened, and many dry goods warehouses wiped out. The loss from merchandise destroyed may greatly augment the first estimate of damage.

The fire broke out in the industrial district. The entire fire-fighting department of the city was called out, and it was soon seen that they were unable to cope with the situation.

Orders were given for those living nearby to evacuate their homes. Panic followed this order, and while many tumbled their household goods from windows, women and children ran through the streets screaming, and the police had hard work to hold back the throngs of excited men. Swiftly the conflagration gained headway, and began eating its way into the district filled with storehouses and mercantile establishments. On account of the great quantity of combustible material in the warehouses and dry goods shops, it was feared for a time that the entire city would be wiped out. It is estimated that fully 500 people are homeless in the tenement district.

NAPOLEON LAJOIE QUILTS

Resigns As Manager of Cleveland American League Club.

Cleveland, O., Aug. 18.—Napoleon Lajoie voluntarily tendered his resignation as manager of the Cleveland American league base ball team, to take effect as soon as a successor can be appointed by the directors of the team. Lajoie will continue to play with the team. Lajoie's resignation is due to the large amount of criticism he has been subjected to on account of his failure to make a better showing with the team this year. Rumors of disension among the players on account of Lajoie's alleged personal unpopularity have been rife. This, coupled with the team's losing streak on the last eastern trip, caused many patrons of the game to demand his resignation. The club owners defended Lajoie. No successor for Lajoie has been appointed, and the club owners say they are undecided as to whom they will appoint.

FIGHT FOR LIFE IN OPEN SEA

Crew of Schooner Arlington in Six-Hour Battle For Life.

ONE SWEEPED TO SEA AND LOST

Captain Lost His Bearings in Driving Rain and Fog, and Mistaking Lights of Hotel For Those of Ocean Liner, His Vessel Ran Aground and Will Be a Total Loss.

New York, Aug. 18.—Long Island life savers, after a six hours' battle, added another victory against the sea to their long list of remarkable rescues, when they brought safely to land the captain and crew—seven souls in all—from the three-masted schooner Arlington, of Boston, which went ashore in the driving rain and fog off Long Beach, on the south shore of Long Island.

The eighth member of the crew, Madden Pierson, a Swede, who put off from the schooner on a raft with the hope of reaching the shore with a line, was swept out to sea by the tide and lost sight of. It is believed that he perished. It was at first reported that Pierson had been picked up five miles to the north, near Rockaway Beach, but this was not borne out.

The rescue from the schooner was witnessed by cheering guests of the Nassau hotel at Long Beach and by hundreds of cottagers. And, strangely, the hotel was indirectly responsible for the vessel's plight, for Captain Ira Small, after having lost his bearings, mistook the glimmering lights in the structure for those of a liner in mid-ocean, and thus mistook, ran aground. The schooner, heavily laden with anthracite, bound from this port for Mayport, Fla., struck a sandbar three hundred yards off shore while the rain made the dim early morning light more impenetrable. Pounded by a heavy sea, while a terrific easterly gale was blowing, she began to yield immediately.

Boats and life preservers went with the first crash, and the masts, which bent to the gale and appeared likely to go down at any moment, seemed an unsafe shelter to the captain. He and the crew accordingly climbed out on the bowsprit.

The life savers reached the scene soon after daybreak. They worked frantically, but in vain, trying to shoot a line to the wreck. The high seas and wind made this impossible, but perseverance won the day. After six futile attempts they succeeded in getting a surf boat through the breakers to the lee of the wreck, and the rescue of the imperiled sailors followed.

Aside from a broken ankle sustained by the cabin boy and the suffering incident to exposure, which all sustained, no one was seriously injured. Guests at the hotel Nassau and neighboring residents began taking up subscriptions for the survivors. Two hundred dollars had been collected so far. The Arlington will be a total loss.

LOST WILL STRANGELY FOUND

Discovered In Family Bible, Written On a Card.

Washington, Pa., Aug. 18.—Turning the pages of the family Bible, Mrs. Mira Wonseller, discovered her husband's will, covering an estate valued at $55,000, over which two branches of the family have bitterly fought since the death of Mr. Wonseller in 1907. A will made several days before the man's death was set aside by the court and one made earlier, in which a daughter was the chief beneficiary, declared valid.

A sale of some of the personal effects of the deceased was to have been made, when the new will, of later date than the one probated was found, written on a card. If it is upheld by the court the wife will receive the entire estate.

MISSING AXLETON YOUNG GIRL FOUND

Tells Pitiful Story of Abuse at Hands of Foster Father.

Charleroi, Pa., Aug. 18.—Developments came thick and fast in the search for Annie Gates, seventeen years old, a foster daughter of F. G. Chambers, of Axleton, near here, who was supposed to have been kidnapped last week. The girl was found, seriously ill, at a home fifteen miles from her own, and told a story of abuse and ill-treatment, alleged to have been received at the hands of her foster father that caused his arrest later.

After leaving the Chambers' home, the girl became ill, but struggled on, her only idea being to get as far as possible from the scene of her trouble. Finally, becoming entirely exhausted, she sought shelter at the home of J. A. Riggs, asking for work, saying the only payment desired was board and clothes. Mrs. Riggs, a former trained nurse, took care of the girl and called a physician, to whom the girl told her story. Her assertions of the indignities to which she was forced to submit were made known to the police, who immediately placed Chambers under arrest. Feeling here is strong against the man.

BOOST "CODE" RATES

Companies After Those Who Work Cipher System.

Chicago, Aug. 18.—An increase of rates on code messages was announced by the Western Union and Postal Telegraph companies. The new schedule, aimed at the cipher messages, goes into effect Sept. 1. General use of the code system, the companies argue, has had a tendency to complicate traffic.

By the terms of the dictum, cipher messages will be charged at the rate of five letters to the word, instead of ten letters, unless the telegram is built on words which appear in the dictionary. Domestic messages only are affected by the new rule, cable ciphers escaping the increase.

Scorching hot waves sweeping across the prairie added much to the general discomfort, but no prostrations were reported.

CONFESSES TO COUSIN'S MURDER

Maryland Mau Brutally Slain In Quarrel Over Whisky.

BODY FOUND IN LONELY CABIN

Murderer Was "Sweated" By Baltimore Detectives, to Whom He Admitted the Crime—Dead Man Had Been Missing For Nearly a Month.

Baltimore, Aug. 18.—Oliver Herman Harris, who some days ago acknowledged having murderously assaulted his aunt, Mrs. Clara Harris, confessed that on July 22 he had murdered his cousin, Henson Poole, whose terribly decomposed body was found on Saturday afternoon in a closet in the little cabin in which he lived alone, near Rockville, Montgomery county. The confession, which followed two hours' "sweating" by Baltimore detectives, Harris having been brought here largely for that purpose, it is said, was taken down by a stenographer, and a typewritten copy of it was signed by Harris, who broke down when told that his finger prints, taken in the police Bertillon bureau here, were like those made in blood on the doorway of the closet in which Poole's body was found. In it he says that he went to Poole's cabin about 3 a. m., July 22, to buy some whisky, and that a quarrel arose over the question whether he or Poole should put water in the liquor. The confession continues:

"He came toward me and I knocked him down. When he got up he grabbed for the rifle. I then grabbed the rifle and shot him and hit him with a hammer. I did not want him to make any noise and draw a crowd. I shot him twice more while he was on the mattress. I then dragged him to the closet and shut the door."

Harris further said that he took two quarts of whisky and $52 in money which Poole had, together with his keys and went away. Subsequently, he went to a fair at Rockville and to Washington, where the money taken from Poole was spent.

Poole not having been seen for about three weeks, his father became uneasy, and on Saturday began the search which ended in the finding of the body of his son in his home, the door of which had to be forced to secure entrance.

While the stolen money lasted Harris seemed to have given no thought to the possible consequences of the crime. Finally realizing something of his position, however, and needing money with which to get away from the neighborhood, his thoughts turned to his aunt, Mrs. Clara Harris. He knew that she usually kept some money at her home, but took it with her whenever she left there. Sending her word that a relative was ill and needed her, Harris waylaid her in the field and almost killed her. Robbery alone was the motive of this crime, Harris says. Mrs. Harris was shot and beaten very much as was Poole. This, and the fact that Harris appeared to have been the last person to see Poole alive, threw upon him the suspicion which brought out his confession.

REAL WHITE WINGS HERE

Ohio Town Has a Flock of Ducks As Street Cleaners.

Bellefontaine, O., Aug. 18.—The white wings of the town of Lakeview, near here, are literally white wings. They're ducks. Recently the finances of the village fell to such a low ebb that it was impossible to longer employ a street sweeping service, so that it was dispensed with. There remained a small sum in the treasury. One of the aldermen proposed that the money be invested in a flock of ducks, which would go through the streets and eat the rubbish.

Lean ducks were bought and turned loose. They started in at one end of the town early in the morning, and made their way to the other end, when they were turned backward or shifted to another street.

The Weather.

Forecast for this section: Unsettled today and tomorrow; moderate south winds.

BREEDING THE BERKSHIRES.

A successful breeder of swine says of the Berkshires: "No farmer who is on the lookout for profitable swine will make a mistake in selecting the Berkshires. On the contrary, if given proper care and attention they will prove a revelation to the man who has been handling scrub stock. While, to be fair, this might also be said of a number of other high class breeds, having bred the Berkshires so successfully for many years, I naturally prefer them and cannot recommend them too highly."

"We have never had a Berkshire sow eat a pig," says another breeder of these swine. "Neither have we ever bred a cross Berkshire sow nor bred or owned a cross Berkshire boar. The Berkshire is not the undersized hog that it once was. The champion boar at St. Louis weighed over 1,000 pounds. The second prize boar weighed 936 pounds. The sows weighed 800 pounds. We have a yearling boar that weighs 700 pounds, and a full brother to a couple of our brood sows weighed 606 pounds at eleven months and twenty days old. Their ability to put on this weight with the best possible feed has not been affected by this improvement."

"In summer the mature animals are maintained almost wholly upon pasture, with only a small ration of whole oats or wheat middlings at night. The pasture is clover, rye, rape and permanent pasture. Our best success has been with rye pasture. We put in two places last year, Aug. 26, and commenced pasturing it as soon as it got a fair start. During summer months the little fellows run on pasture and are fed twice a day. They get a slop composed of corn, middlings, oats and digester tankage, a byproduct of the packing houses, containing about 4 per cent protein, and we prefer it to oilmeal."

"For two or three years we had our troubles when weaning pigs. Some of each litter and frequently the best ones would have white scours. Later we have started them when on the dam by giving a side dish of wheat middlings fed dry in a creep. From the time they are weaned they should be fed twice a day just what they will clean up greedily and no more. If we find one with thumps he is taken away from the sow and put in a pen by himself till he gets good and hungry and runs around squealing a bit several times a day for a day or so.

"The Berkshires have great constitutional vigor, are easy feeders and produce a pound of meat at a minimum cost. Both breeder and feeder desire a rapid and economical flesh producer. The Berkshire meets this demand. For this reason many feeders use pure bred Berkshire sires. The prepotency of the sire is shown in a herd of striking uniformity of conformation and quality, such as finds a ready sale on the market. The pigs also fatten easily and produce a very superior class of meat. The meat of the Berkshire is firm, of fine grain, with the fat interlarded with the lean, and is of prime quality. No better ham or bacon goes to market than that from a 250 pound Berkshire."

Training the Colt.

An old horseman remarked recently, "If a man wants to learn about horses he must learn from horses." A man to be successful must be with horses, and be a close observer of their moods, manners and makeup. A colt should be trained from the first moment that he is helped to his feet. If taught to yield early to man's restraint and guidance he will never need "breaking." To follow his master's wishes will be a second nature. Never speed a colt too young, and when he is given speed permit it for short spurts only and as he can bear it.

Regular Feeding.

Experienced dairymen understand what regularity in feed and attention to stock mean. To run your animal to its full capacity no overfeeding or underfeeding must be indulged in. Animals left to themselves will take food and water at regular hours and intervals, and the wise feeder will give his rations in the same manner.

Points For the Horseman.

Never make your colts or horses face a blank, dark wall all the time while in the barn. Give them plenty of light. It is better for their eyes.

The growing colts, especially the roadsters, should have a lot of exercise. They should under no circumstances be kept in the stables.

Take care to avoid shoulder galls and saddle sores. Lift the collar from the horse's neck occasionally and allow it to cool, and be careful to see that the harness does not rub.

An overworked mare or one that is poorly fed cannot be expected to produce a colt that will have the vitality or the constitution of one that came of a mare that was well fed and only moderately used.

Easy To Be Beautiful

Secret of Perfect Complexion Told by A Woman Who Knows.

To the Editor:

I want to tell all the women readers of the Gettysburg Times (and the men, too, for that matter), of a remarkable discovery that will clear the complexion of all pimples, blackheads, liver spots and the other blemishes that make many a life miserable.

It is called Margo, I bought 50 cents worth at L. M. Buehler's and I used it only a few days when my skin became so clear and rosy that I looked years younger. I do not know as I would have tried it, if he had not said he would refund my money if it did not do what I expected, but he will not have to give me back any thing; in fact I am going to get another box and completely drive away the last pimple.

Please print this in a prominent place, for I want other women to know as much about getting a beautiful complexion as

The horse census for the past two years, as compiled by the bureau of animal statistics, has some interesting figures. It shows that on Jan. 1, 1908, there were in the country 19,962,000 horses having a total value of $1,867,530,000, giving an average of $93.41 per head. A year later, Jan. 1, 1909, the number had increased to 20,040,000 and the total value to $1,974,952,000, which gives an average price of $95.64. This shows that there has been a gain of $2.23 per head. The average price of horses per head ten years ago was $80.25.

Farmers and gardeners in Massachusetts are suffering considerable damage from deer, the killing of which has been prohibited for a number of years past and are now asking the legislature for permission to kill marauding deer which appear on their premises. The deer seem to realize that they are privileged characters and presuming on this have become so bold that they invade farm fields and gardens and do much damage in a single night. This is an illustration of a protection which has been carried too far and is overdone. Permission to kill trespassing animals would doubtless put a stop to the nuisance and make them seek uncultivated fields and timber lots.

GRAY HAIRS BANISHED

The old idea of using sage for darkening the hair is again coming in vogue. Our grandmothers used to have dark glossy hair at the age of seventy-five while our mothers have white hair before they are fifty. Our grandmothers used to make a "sage tea" and apply it to their hair. The tea made their hair soft and glossy and gradually restored the natural color. One objection to using such a preparation was the trouble of making it, especially as it had to be made every two or three days on account of it souring quickly. This objection has been overcome, and by asking almost any first-class druggist for Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur the public can get a superior preparation of sage, with the admixture of sulphur, another valuable remedy for hair and scalp troubles. Daily use of this preparation will not only quickly restore the color of the hair but will also stop the hair from falling out and make it grow. It is sold by all druggists for 50c. and $1.00 a bottle, or is sent direct by the Wyeth Chemical Company, 74 Cortlandt St., New York City, upon receipt of price.

Grange

A HISTORIC BUILDING

It Is Owned by Lindenwald
Grange of Kinderhook, N. Y.

Formerly an Academy Building Which Was Constructed Nearly a Century
Ago—School Was Attended by Martin
Van Buren and Samuel J. Tilden.

Writing of their new-old grange hall recently dedicated by Lindenwald grange at Kinderhook, Mr. Edward Van Alstyne has this to say in the Tribune-Farmer:

Although Columbia is one of the counties in New York in which the grange is of recent origin—it having had a foothold there only in the last decade—yet we have today between 5,000 and 6,000 Patrons. Doubtless few counties are better organized or have a more really active membership. Lindenwald grange at Kinderhook—which takes its name from the home of the late ex-President Martin Van Buren, just south of the village, and numbers some of that name among its members—on Friday, June 18, dedicated its new home and gave its sixth annual banquet. Shortly after the grange was started a centrally located store in the village was purchased, and the upper story was fitted up as a hall, the lower being rented. This property cost, with needed repairs, about $3,000. Of this all except $250 had been paid. On April 1 we had expected to pay $350 or $400 more, but the building caught fire last winter, the dealer's goods were damaged and our hall was partially destroyed. After some discussion it was decided to sell the lot and building, or what was left of it, and purchase the old Kinderhook academy, this school, like most of the old line academies, having had to give place to the public school.

It had been devoted to several base uses and for the last two years had stood vacant, with none so poor to do it reverence. It was built in the days of cheap and abundant lumber, and the builders must have been men of good repute, for it stands as true and strong today as when it was erected nearly a century ago, for it was organized in 1824 by those of Holland ancestry, who were ever zealous in the cause of education. Many bearing the same names are in the membership of the grange today. The funds were raised by private subscription, and it became one of the famous schools of the state. Here Martin Van Buren, the eighth president of the United States, was educated. Later students were Samuel J. Tilden, who received the popular vote to the same office, and scores of others who have occupied places of prominence in various walks of life, both in the state and the nation.

The old chapel has been fitted into a lodge room of light and beauty, with rooms below as a kitchen, a dining hall and a committee room. State Master Godfrey dedicated the building.

Novel Way to Earn Funds.

One grange early in the season gave out, through the provision of the master and lecturer, one good sized potato to every member who would take one. The secretary recorded where every potato went and the number of eyes it possessed and will keep the account open until reckoning time next fall. The persons taking the potatoes are to cultivate them carefully, and at an appointed meeting next fall they will render an account of the potatoes they have raised and "produce the goods" in the grange hall. After the harvests have all been credited to each raiser the total yield of potatoes will be sold and the proceeds turned over to the grange treasury. This is a plan worth pasting in the scrap book, ready for use next spring.—National Grange Organ.

Lecturers' Meetings.

State Lecturer S. J. Lowell is making an effort to reach by lecturers' conferences every county in the state and to this end has organized the state into districts of from three to half a dozen counties. Beginning Aug. 23, the conferences will be held in each of these districts with the Pomona and subordinate lecturers. The conferences will end Sept. 8, probably at Syracuse. In the counties in which these meetings are to be held the Pomona lecturers are expected to make arrangements and notify Mr. Lowell as soon as a location has been made. It is expected that the state master will attend all these meetings. Deputies are urged to be present so as to unify the work of the grange.

A Wise Lecturer.

A method of setting many people at work is being tried by one lecturer this year and is working well so far, says the national grange organ. There were 200 members at the beginning of the year, and he figured out that a lecture hour program would be needed for twenty meetings. Accordingly he divided the membership into squads of ten persons each, named a chairman and assigned the respective evenings one to each squad and so printed the program. The full year's results will be worth watching.

The Pomona ideals should be higher and a model for other granges to work by. They were intended for this purpose originally and to be a help to the subordinate granges.

Farm and Garden

THE CULTURE OF CABBAGE.

Soil and Condition For Successful
Growth of Plants.

To be able to grow cabbage successfully in any season the soil should be in such a condition that the water will pass through it as freely as it would through a piece of pumice stone or porous rock. As a general rule, the poorer the soil the drier and more porous it is. Thus it is that on the comparatively poor farms better late cabbages are grown than in the market gardens that are very rich. A soil field broken early in the spring and well manured has generally been found to grow the best cabbage. This does not apply to the early crops. These do best on the soils that are rich and full of humus.

Low priced fertilizers sometimes give as good results as the higher priced goods; but, on the whole, it will pay to be liberal with nitrogen. The two experiments indicate that it is profitable to use nitrate of soda on the plant beds at the rate of 450 to 600 pounds per acre.

The cabbage is a native of western and southern Europe and has been used for human food from time immemorial. All of the types of cabbage, cauliflower, Brussels sprouts, collard and kale have sprung from the same original source—namely, Brassica oleracea.

ROOT DEVELOPMENT OF CABBAGE.

racea, Linn. The wild type is still growing on the chalk cliffs of the English channel. On the cliffs of southern England is now found a plant similar to the Georgia collards.

There are three distinct types of cabbage with reference to the shape of the head—namely, round, oval and flat. Some varieties are distinct in type, while others partake of two or more shapes due to crossing in seed production. There is much variation in the shape, color, character and texture of the leaf, ranging from regular straight edges, almost white, smooth and tender, to irregular, almost fringed edges, dark purple color and coarse, tough texture.

Generally speaking, all varieties are hardy, but there is some variation in hardness. Usually the purplish green varieties with crinkled and fringed leaves are harder than the whitish green sorts with smooth, regular leaves. The cold resisting varieties are also the most heat resisting.

For a very early crop the seed may be sown in a well prepared seed bed outside in September, and the plants be wintered over in a cold frame or by mulching with straw in a sheltered place. These plants may be set out

There is altogether too much truth in the seemingly extravagant statement that if a fellow steals a ham he goes to prison for it, but if he steals a railroad or wrecks a bank he goes scot free.

The crabgrass, one of the worst of garden pests, is fortunately only an annual—lives but a year—and hence if it is kept from going to seed in August or September it will be knocked out for next year. Elbow grease and perseverance are the requisites in exterminating it.

A road treated with the road drag acquires character, so to speak, as time passes. One treatment keeps it from getting into as bad shape during the next wet spell, and so on with every subsequent treatment until it becomes well nigh impervious to surface water and much less susceptible to indentations from the traffic which passes over it.

APPLE CROP NOT A FAILURE

State Economic Zoologist Surface yesterday branded as misleading, to say the least, reports which are being printed in the press generally throughout the country, stating that the entire apple crop in Pennsylvania is a failure this year and that 95 per cent of that crop is so wormy or otherwise defective as to be absolutely worthless and fit for nothing short of food for hogs.

Pennsylvania fruit growers are suffering almost irreparable damage from these reports," said Professor Surface, "for they are being printed in every State in the Union, literally speaking.

The yarn does have some foundation, but it is working a great injustice to the Pennsylvania orchardists. The truth of the matter is that in 95 per cent of the orchards the crop is a total failure—which is vastly different from 95 per cent of the crop being unfit for use.

"The real horticulturist—the man who grows apples as a business and takes care of his trees—will reap a harvest in fruit and money this year. The real Pennsylvania horticulturist who has an apple orchard has fruit on his trees right now which is as fine as any I have ever seen, not even excepting California.

He has attained his end by judicious pruning and spraying and cultivating, for an orchard needs cultivation, just as much as a field of corn. The result is that in the good orchards the scientific man or any other man can search in vain for a defective apple; in fact, he will be fortunate to find even a defective leaf or twig by the most careful search.

"Orchardist of this class will have no trouble disposing of their crop at fancy prices; coincidentally, the buyer who stays away from Pennsylvania because of the false reports, he sees will be making a poor business move.

"With the other apple grower—the man who grows apples by the grace of God and a good season—matters are different. It is scarcely just to call him an apple grower. He merely sets out his trees and trusts nature to do the rest, and nature does the opposite from what he wishes. Because of the prolonged drought and other adverse conditions this has been one of the worst years for scale, moths and other enemies of sound apples. And the man who pays no scientific attention to spraying, pruning and cultivation is learning this bitter lesson more forcibly than ever before."

There is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. The only cure for catarrh of any kind is this. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address: F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, Ohio.

very early in spring, long before spring grown plants may be used. To make extra good plants they will need to be taken from the seed bed and be pricked out two inches apart in other beds. By setting a succession of plants the crop may be constant from May or June until Christmas.

The plants of early varieties are set out in spring as early as the weather permits in rows three feet apart and two feet apart in the rows. The fall grown plants are often planted in the field in November. Furrows are turned where the rows are to be and the plants are set low in the furrows, so as to be protected. North and south furrows with plants set on the east side are satisfactory, although east and west furrows are sometimes preferred. Later varieties require more room. Early plants must be set deep—that is, so the base of the leaves is below the ground. If freezing weather comes the plants may be covered with earth until danger from frost is over.

The illustration showing the roots of a cabbage is an interesting study.

The cow census for Jan. 1, 1909, places the total number at 21,720,000 and worth $702,945,000. This means that the average cow has a value of $32.36.

There is altogether too much truth in the seemingly extravagant statement that if a fellow steals a ham he goes to prison for it, but if he steals a railroad or wrecks a bank he goes scot free.

THE FIRST QUARREL.

By CLINTON C. FLAGLER.

[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

"Dearest, sweetest Ethel—Oh, that I had you with me this minute that I might rest my head on your bosom and feel your dear arms about me! Oh, how I need your comforting caresses! Why will girls separate themselves from their own loving girl friends to place themselves in the power of a rough, harsh, ungenerous, irritating, annoying man! To what a situation have I awakened! Married but three weeks, I have discovered that my husband, instead of being the kind, considerate, devoted creature I thought him, is brutal—positively brutal. Oh, how it pains me to confess it even to you, my own true, best and only friend!

"It all came about in this way. On our wedding trip Bert received a telegram calling him back to the city on business. We had been traveling three weeks of the honeymoon and were to spend the fourth week with mamma before leaving my home forever. When Bert's telegram came I told him that we could have but one honeymoon and he should not permit business to interfere with it. He replied that the matter in question might influence our future comfort, since it was of great importance. He positively refused to disregard the summons. Then I told him that he could do as he pleased. I would carry out the arrangement we had made and go home. He asked if I considered it a proper act for a wife to leave her husband for the fourth week of the honeymoon. That's just how reasonable men are! As if I were leaving him, not he leaving me! What do you suppose he said to me?

"If you're going to commence running off to your mother at the end of the third week after marriage, you'll probably keep it up so long as she lives." Could he have made a more horrid speech? I just walked out of the room and left him. The same afternoon I came home he went to the city. Mother had gone away for the day when I arrived and I must wait till evening for her return. Since I can't tell her of my rightful treatment I must tell it to the one I love next best. Do write me by return mail, giving me that sympathy of which I stand so much in need. Your loving

MOLLIE."

The next day Albert Goodwin comes home from business, opens the front door of the house prepared to receive him and his bride, puts his hat and cane in the hall closet and goes upstairs, sighing heavily—goes into a bedroom where he is surprised to find his wife.

"Why, Mollie?"

No reply.

"What has brought you home? I thought you were not coming for a week."

"Well, mamma, she"—

"She, what?"

"She sided with you about our little disagreement."

"Little disagreement?"

"Yes, I feel perfectly satisfied now that mother thinks I should be here with you."

"Oh, it's your mother's view of it that has converted you."

A few gulps and a burst of tears. Young husband clasps wife in his arms. She pillows her head on his shoulder, and he kisses away the big drops. An hour of exquisite happiness, and the couple go down to dinner. When coffee is served there is a ring at the doorbell, and the postman leaves a letter for Mrs. Goodwin. She scans the superscription, frowns and lays it on the table unopened.

"From home?" asks the husband.

"No. It's from Ethel Beech."

"Your bosom friend! And you lay it by to finish your dinner with me. That's lovely of you."

"Oh, I can read it at my leisure."

"Come, sweetheart, this is all a sacrifice for me. Read your letter. I'll look at the evening paper."

He takes up the paper. She opens the letter, reads a few lines, tears it in bits and throws it into a wastebasket. This is the letter:

"My poor, dear suffering Mollie. Can you doubt that if I were with you in this, your great life's disappointment and affliction, I would take you to my heart. Who ever heard of a man allowing business to separate him from his wife during the honeymoon? And how selfish in him to grudge you a week in that home where you have been born and reared by loving parents before leaving them to live with a comparative stranger! I hope that by this time your mother is with you that her arms are about you and she is sympathizing with you in your misfortune. Do write me what you intend to do. Will you get a divorce?"

"I must tell you how beautiful my new pink silk looks. I hunted all over town for a shade of trimming to match and at last found it at D's."

"Goodby, precious. How I pity you, poor dear. I hope your mother will keep you with her always and you'll never have to go back to your ungenerous husband. Your loving

"ETHEL."

"Ethel been saying anything unpleasant?" asked the husband, surprised at the tearing up of the letter.

"Well, Ethel, she"—

"She what?"

"She hasn't any experience in matrimony at all. She doesn't understand how married people feel about some things."

"Oh! These people called me home on a fool's errand. If you like we'll spend that week in your home after all."

"No. We'll stay here. The house is lovely, isn't it?"
